

Paper 4

Like the previous paper, this paper is a presentation of a model of motion detection. The current paper discusses the model from a neurophysiological perspective. As it is intended for an audience with that background, it employs terminology from neurophysiology. Since I am not a neurophysiologist myself, however, the jargon is not too excessive.